

difficult to command the labor requisite for that purpose, but also to smaller clocks for use in families.

I do not limit my claim to the precise arrangement of mechanism shown, as its details may evidently be varied in many ways—for example, two or more bells arranged so as to be rung might be substituted for the single bell struck in the manner described, and similar variations will readily suggest themselves.

What I claim as new, and desire to secure by Letters Patent of the United States, is—

A clock, provided with the mechanism for sounding the Angelus automatically, substantially as shown and described.
